CONSTRUCTECH

Strength in Numbers

Better integration between construction applications is good news for end users. BuilderMT, www.buildermt.com, Lakewood, Colo., a provider of production management software for residential homebuilders, has partnerships with others in the industry, including AxisPointe Inc., www.axispointe.com, Lehi, Utah; and Corrigo Inc., www.corrigo.com, Wilsonville, Ore.

AxisPointe and Corrigo recently announced an integration deal between their products. AxisPointe offers warranty documentation management, outsourced callback management, and subcontractor certification. Corrigo provides wireless on-demand service and work order management solutions.

BuilderMT says the three combined, complementary services will be marketed as one solution called the BuilderMT Post-Construction Suite.

"The BuilderMT Post-Construction Suite offers builders a range of solutions—seamlessly pre-integrated into BuilderMT users' workflows in scheduling, purchasing, and accounting..." says Tom Gebes, president, BuilderMT.

The BuilderMT Post-Construction Suite will offer customized home-specific manuals, available in hard copy, digital, and online formats, which track warranties or documents associated with a new home. An outsourced call center solution handles homeowner calls in the builder's name. When a problem arises, the BuilderMT Post-Construction Suite offers builders the opportunity to dispatch service or technical resources to the home. Workers can determine if the builder is responsible for the cost of the repair, because they are equipped with data specific to that home.
