

BuilderMT Racks Up Another Technology Award, Adding to a Long String of Wins

BuilderMT's Place on the Elite "Constructech 50" List Reaffirms the Company's Status as the Construction Industry's Top Solution Provider

Lakewood, Colorado — July 12, 2010 — BuilderMT, North America's best-selling construction workflow software solution provider, today announced that it has earned a spot on the Constructech 50 list of the most-influential construction technology providers. The winners were announced July 7.

This Constructech 50 award for BuilderMT continues a tradition of placing at the very top of the industry's best awards, and BuilderMT's winning streak now includes nearly two dozen technology awards.

According to Constructech magazine, the Constructech 50 is a listing of the most influential construction technology providers with a strong and ongoing market presence. The winners were determined by the editors of Constructech magazine, and the Constructech 50 list will be published in the annual Constructech IT Playbook.

In a statement accompanying the Constructech 50 announcement, Constructech said, "Some of the criteria used in determining the [Constructech 50] list include having a strong product/service aimed at the construction industry, ongoing customer satisfaction and growth, as well as outreach and educational efforts for the construction industry.”

“It’s enormously gratifying to win technology awards like this one, and we surely have seen our share of first-place finishes,” said BuilderMT’s Tom Gebes. “But what is more gratifying to me and the BuilderMT team is the success our customers realize when they implement our technology and achieve great results.”
