Source: Business WirePublication date: 2006-08-25

BuilderMT--the nation's leading provider of production management software for residential homebuilders--today announced it has won ConstrucTech magazine's Hottest Company Award for 2006. This award is just one in a series of awards BuilderMT has won over recent years. With this award, BuilderMT retains its title as the most-award-winning, best-selling software in the home building sector. BuilderMT has won more awards and sold more software systems than all its competitors combined.

Additionally, at this year's ConstrucTech Vision awards ceremony, two BuilderMT clients also won top awards. Graham Hart Home Builder won a "gold" level Vision Award in the "single family builder $5-$25 million tier." Using BuilderMT, Graham Hart Home Builder (120 starts annually) has achieved remarkable success with its entirely integrated, paperless, workflow management home building process. Another BuilderMT customer, Generation Homes (200 starts annually) won the prestigious overall 2006 Team Award from ConstrucTech. The Team Award is given to the best project team with the most innovative use of technology, based on a single project.

BuilderMT's long string of awards now includes:

- ConstrucTech Hottest Company of the Year 2006
- ConstrucTech Vision Awards for 2006 - Graham Hart Home Builder
- ConstrucTech Vision Awards for 2006 overall Team Award - Generation Homes
- Home Builder Executive Magazine 2006 Award for Scheduling Software

"Bar none, we have the very best technology available to home builders for process and workflow management. We couldn't be happier to receive this honor, but the real winners here are our customers, who will continue to have access to the very best software solutions on today's markets."
